Symbol Of The Lamp

Light is made up of subatomic particles called photons, symbolized by the " particle play " of radiating elements from a central source.

Nursing also has its own powerful symbol of light ~the lamp~ represented as the source of the radiating energy.

In 1854 Florence Nightingale first made her late~night, solitary rounds in a military hospital with such a lamp, caring for wounded soldiers. Now, as then, her lamp~the symbol of the light of nursing~captures the soul and spirit of the profession .

In these modern and traditional symbols of light we are reminded that complementary qualities ~ the modern as well as the traditional, the intellectual as well as the spiritual ~ are equally needed if Nurses are to meet their modern goal: Being a Nurse Healer.
